Bill Analysis

HB 3613 creates the Personal Privacy Protection Act. The measure prohibits any state agency from requiring an individual to provide information on affiliation with any nonprofit organization, requiring any nonprofit to provide information on individuals affiliated with them, releasing any nonprofit affiliation information which is in possession of the state, or requiring a contractor or grantee to provide a list of nonprofit entities to which it has provided support. Personal affiliation information is also exempted from the disclosure requirements of the Oklahoma Open Records Act. Any person violating the provisions of the measure may be subject to civil action for appropriate injunctive relief, damages, or both injunctive relief and damages in an amount not less than $2,500.00 and not more than 3 times the cost of the injury or loss to compensate for injury or loss caused by each violation. A person who knowingly violates the act shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment in the county jail and/or a fine.
